wandered occasionally, especially on that day, when the recollections of home seemed powerfully present to her. At last, overcome with fatigue, she lay down on the ground, wrapped up in her plaid. I sat beside her, promising to awaken her when, as she said, 'her father should return from the plowing.' She at length fell into a profound slumber, motionless and apparently breathless, her head resting in my lap. I myself could no longer resist the inclination to sleep, in spite of the continual roar of cannon. Suddeniy I was aroused by a wild, unearthly scream close to my ear; unearthly scream close to my ear; my companion stood upright beside my companion stood upright beside me, her arms raised and her head bent forward in the attitude of listening. A look of intense delight broke over her coun-tenance; she grasped my hand, drew me towards her and exclaimed drew me towards her, and exclaimed 'Dunna yelhear it? dunna ye hear it? Aye, I'm no dreamin'; it's the slogan o' the Highlanders! We're saved, we're saved.' Then flinging herself on her knees, she thanked God with passionate fervor. I felt utterly bewildered; my English ears heard only the roar of artillery, and I thought my poor Jessie was

Here's help at last.' To describe the effect of these words upon the soldiers would be impossible. For a moment they impossible. For a moment they ceased firing and every soul listened ceased firing and every soul listened in intense anxiety. Gradually, however, there arose a murmur of bitter disappointment, and the wailing of the women who had flocked out began anew as the colonel shook his head. Our dall lowland ears heard nothing but the rattle of the musketry. A few minutes more of this death-like suspense, of this agonizing hope, and Jessie who had again sunk on the ground sprang to her feet, and cried in a voice so clear and piercing that it was heard along the whole line: 'Will ye no believe it noo?' The slogan has ceased indeed, but the Campbells are coain'; d'ye hear, a'ye hear?' boucicault's great play of "Jessie Brown." or "The Reliet of Lucknow," which will be produced at the Theatre this evening by the McKenzie-Lucknow, and the Combination, is founded upon one of the moet thrilling incident sconnected with modern warfare. The native uprising in India with the standard of the steps of Lucknow, and many horrors is still fresh in the memory, and among the many the scene of heroic suffering, none, perhaps equaled that of the selge and the leaters of a lady, one of the rescued, when Lucknow was relieved by Sir Colin Campbell; will doubtles when Lucknow was relieved by Sir Colin Campbell will doubtles when Lucknow as relieved by Sir Colin Campbell will doubtles when heavier and having more assessinations when Lucknow was relieved by Sir Colin Campbell; will doubtles when Lucknow was relieved by Sir Golin Campbell; was present last night, and few perhas developed into a remarkably fine actress, and last night added fresh laurels to those heretofore earned. Mr. Cummings and Mr. J. D. Spencer were better than before; the latter gentleman plays Pierre as well as anybody that has yet appeared in the character here. Mr. Wells and Miss Claridge appeared in new roles: Mr. Wells—always careful, and always showing the genuine actor—was not as happy in this line as he has been in others; but Miss Claridge, as the old hag Frochard, a chieved her greatest success. Here make-up was hideously natural, and she carried the part through until she made herself thoroughly detestable market. All our Wool fabrics are exceptionally good, in Style and Quality, this season.
